Miracle Method relocating HQ in Springs

August 28, 2013 | Filed under: Daily News, Retail | Tags: Colorado Springs, headquarters, Miracle Method

By Cameron Moix

A local bathtub, tile and countertop surface refinishing company has announced that in September it will relocate its national headquarters to Colorado Springs.

Miracle Method Surface Refinishing will move next month into its larger space near the intersection of Garden of the Gods Road and 30th Street from its current location at 5020 Mark Dabling Blvd., according to a news release. From its new offices at 4310 Arrowset Dr., the company will continue to serve homeowners, property managers, military installations and hotels in the Pikes Peak region.

"Miracle Method specializes in the professional repair and restoration of bathtubs, tile surrounds and kitchen countertops," the release said. "Miracle Method's proprietary process is an excellent alternative to costly removal and replacement remodeling. Surface refinishing often saves homeowners up to 75 percent over traditional replacement costs, making it an especially great value in today's economy."

The company currently has more than 130 franchise locations in the U.S. and works with clients including hospitals, school, and hotels such as Hyatt, Hilton, Sheraton and Marriott.

In the release, General Manager Randy Stark said that the new location and showroom will "enhance our ability to better serve the community," and that "bathtubs, tile surrounds or a kitchen countertop can be completely transformed within two to three days."
